

ROSEBANK HOTEL REOPENS

The Rosebank Hotel – crisply repackaged as The Rosebank – will reopen its doors next month after being closed for more than a year. In February 2006, the Hospitality Property Fund purchased The Rosebank along with 21 other hotels throughout South Africa. The 75-year-old hotel has undergone a complete makeover and sports a fresh new look with interiors by Jo'burg's LLP Design. It will feature a bar, two restaurants, a gym, a business centre and the up-and-coming Mauritian spa, Seven Colours – South Africa's first – as well as a Croft & Co boutique. All rooms will have wireless internet access.
